I was reading an email I received on the atomic bombs that fell on Japan in 1945 when I realized something interesting. The atomic bomb article describes how the US military video crew filmed the aftermath of the bombs. In describing how the footage was shot and then hidden from the public all these years, I read this:

“The color U.S. military footage would remain hidden until the early 1980s, and has never been fully aired. It rests today at the National Archives in College Park, Md., in the form of 90,000 feet of raw footage labeled #342 USAF.”

I pondered for a moment. Thinking back I remembered my grandmother telling me when I was about 5 or 6 they were the first to have color TV in Fort Wayne, Indiana. If my memory serves me right that would be about 1953 or 1954 since I was born in 1948.

If you have not caught it yet, it is the military had a color camera filming the aftermath in 1945. I assume they would have to view it on a color TV set that wasn't supposedly available until RCA's sets were approved in late 1953 and sold in 1954.

That is a difference of nine years.

But another revelation struck me. Being a New World Order amateur researcher I thought about why the footage was never shown to the public. After all, I can imagine at the time after Pearl Harbor and a hard won war in the Pacific it would have had a large audience. It would have yielded profits for those involved. Even if it was only shown in movie theaters. Or even shown in black and white.

Again I had a realization. If the public viewed the bomb aftermath footage there would be mass shock and complete outrage from the American public at what our government had done in our name. I'll bet the outrage would have been enough to not allow the cold war to even get started.

I also think the NWO knew that too and would have been disastrous for them and their plans for the cold war. What was it Eisenhower said “beware the military industrial complex”? They made so much money in the cold war arms race it was disgraceful.

If you dig deeper into NWO activities, the entire war was a setup from the start. Hell, our current president's grandfather, Prescott Bush, financed and laundered money for Hitler.

Speaking of presidents, you will find that at least 3 of 4 of our presidents that have been assassinated had one thing in common. They had the government print or wanted the government to print the nation's money instead of the privately owned Federal Reserve.

Feeling ill yet? It will pass. Then I hope you get angry enough to unite and help end this...
